SPEAKS IN CITY OF MEMPHIS

President Greeted by Enthusiastic Thousands--Addresses Deep Waterways Convention, Then Hikes to Hunting Ground.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—With bands playing, children singing and enthusiastic men shouting the slogan of deep waterways, Memphis threw wide her gates this afternoon to President Roosevelt, a score of governors and many other distinguished personages from the states in the fertile Mississippi Valley.

The president arrived here on the United States steamer Mississippi shortly after 1 o'clock. The bluffs overlooking the river were packed with people, who gave the chief executive a warm welcome. As the steamer landed the whistles of all craft in the harbor sounded. Immediately following the steamer Mississippi was the steamer Alton, carrying visiting governors and other notables. When all had landed the president was conducted to a carriage by Gov. Patterson of Tennessee and Mayor Malone of Memphis and the most imposing parade ever seen here began.

Greets Confederate Bodyguard.

The president was continuously cheered throughout the march. The city was a waving mass of color, not only along the line of parade, but on

The huge structure filled up rapidly and when Gov. Malcolm R. Patterson of Tennessee arose to present the president an immense assemblage greeted him.

President Roosevelt departed from his printed speech in several instances. Speaking of the Confederate guard of honor he said it was a touching sight to see these old Confederate soldiers carrying the flag of this great union. If anyone wanted to know how they would fight for that flag let him ask the boys in blue how they fought against it. He said with emphasis that he was as much the president of the South as of the North and was devoted to its interests. He said he was half a Southerner and when he told of two or three of his uncles having worn the gray he was tremendously applauded.

For Improvement of Mississippi.

Speaking of the deep water channel from the Gulf to the Lakes the president said he favored rapid improvement of the Mississippi river. "Like Davy Crockett, the great Tennessean" he said, "I favor his motto, 'Be sure you are right, then go ahead,' and this

Things we Must Do and Keep on Doing

The fakir, who jumps from town to town in the wake of a circus, or the fly-by-night merchant who finishes up unexpired leases at bargain prices, can foist any kind of stuff upon the unwary public. But we, who have to do business at the old stand year after year, have to shoulder a responsibility to our customers that makes reliable goods a NECESSITY of incalculable importance. It's one of the things we must do to build our store.

And its one of the things we ARE DOING and must KEEP ON DOING to build our town.

Reliable goods, reliable fashions, reliable values, have made our business the foremost in Ada. The same forces will keep it there. Our reputation depends not merely on what we HAVE done, but on what we KEEP ON doing; our place on the map is permanent; we can't fall off the circus to another town.

Yours for reliable values.

many other streets as well. When the president's carriage turned into Main street he was saluted by a regiment of Confederate veterans, who from that point acted as a bodyguard. The president arose and warmly greeted the grizzled warriors of a half a century ago.

Despite a lively downpour of rain, which lasted until noon, the streets were jammed with citizens and visitors. Passing north on Second street 200 school children were seated on a decorated arch and sang patriotic airs as the president passed. The president arose in his carriage and bowed repeatedly to the little ones.

Arriving at the Auditorium rink, where the deep waterways convention is being held, President Roosevelt alighted and after chatting with several friends ascended the platform.

Entered as second-class mail matter March 28, 1904, at the post office at Ada, Indian territory under the Act of Congress March 3, 1893.

ENTER OKLAHOMA.

Within a few days the president is expected to issue a proclamation—possibly from the Louisiana canebrake—announcing the result of the election in Oklahoma; and, thereupon, according to law, the new state of Oklahoma will be deemed to have been admitted by congress into the union. The president has already made known the fact that he will find the constitution and government of the new state to be republican in form, though his private opinion of the constitution is unfit for publication. All that remains to be done in making Oklahoma a state is the issuance of the proclamation, which must be issued within twenty days of the receipt by the president of the certificate of the result of the election.

The forty-sixth state is democratic. Its two democratic senators will swell the minority to thirty-one, which would be sufficient, if united, to prevent the ratification of a treaty proposed by a republican president and supported by the solid republican majority in the senate. The frequency with which important events have been decided on a slender margin in the senate lends interest to the entry of the two senators from Oklahoma into that chamber. The state will also send five representatives to the house, only one of them a republican. The next national convention will have delegations from Oklahoma of respectable size and the next electoral college will contain seven electors from Oklahoma, probably all of them democrats. It is within the range of possibility, although at this time apparently very improbable, that the vote of Oklahoma may make William J. Bryan president of the United States. In that event the republicans who now praise the president for his broad and statesmanlike neglect of the fact that Oklahoma is democratic may revise their opinion, and wish from their souls that he had kept Oklahoma out of the union.

But the future must take care of itself. The president does not approve of the Oklahoma constitution, and is too good a republican to look with pleasure upon the increase of democratic votes in the electoral college. He recognizes the still more important fact, however, that a permanent and populous community of highly intelligent, prosperous Americans have created a state, worthy in all respects to join the mighty sisterhood, and to the union. There it will stay forever! Democratic or republican—what matter it in the long run, so long as it is one more sturdy prop of a perpetual republic?—Boston Post.

THE STATUS OF PRISONERS.

Some discussion seems to have arisen as to what will become of prisoners charged with crime and now incarcerated in the various jails of the Indian Territory when statehood shall be proclaimed. It has been stated that able lawyers are divided in opinion as to the legal status of the criminals under the new regime, which is a little surprising to say the least.

For the information of anyone who is muddled on the matter the Times-Democrat will state that little or no change will be wrought in pending criminal cases—the state of Oklahoma merely appearing as prosecutor instead of the United States. To be otherwise would pre-suppose an interregnum, which can never occur under our form of government. When an officer is elected and qualified he makes oath to perform the duties of his office until his successor is duly elected and qualified and therefore even a momentary lapse of legal authority could never obtain. The contention that there will be no one to prosecute is totally imaginary and probably fated by the wish, for it might be just as easily averred that there will be no one to release them from durance and that their imprisonment would continue indefinitely without trial.

Assuming for argument's sake that prisoners should be released without trial, the incoming executive officers would immediately re-arrest the culprits under alias capias warrants and return them to prison until their cases were legally disposed of. To assume otherwise would be to argue that because Oklahoma, in becoming a state, lost its identity as a part of the United States, when, on the contrary, it has become a more crystallized entity.—Muskogee Times-Democrat.

Increased Cost of Living.

From the Boston Globe.
The cost of necessities of life, which has been steadily rising for some years took a rapid upward movement during the past season. Every provider for a family knows what has happened as regards table provisions. The grocer's bill and the butcher's bill were never so large in the memory of housewives of this generation; we must bark back to old household expense books of the year following the Civil war to find anything like it.

It is figured that the advance in prices recently brought about ranges from 10 to 30 per cent. A fair average seems to be found in the statement that the person who went to market last winter with $1 to buy food for the family must now take $1.20 to get the same goods. And the advance continues. We have just seen the price of milk go up. Butter and other dairy products continue to soar. There are promises of an advance in the price of canned goods. California dried fruits already are held at higher figures, and so throughout the list.

Something of this may be attributed to the operation of the pure food law. We are getting better goods for our money. That is to say, the cheap and nasty products are excluded from the market. For this we may be thankful. Better pay more for the real thing and less for adulterants.

But, regarding the situation in a broad way, the views of ex-Governor W. L. Douglas, set forth by him in an article prepared for the New York World, have a peculiar force and pertinence. Mr. Douglas treats of the general questions of our financial and political conditions, but he brings the matter close home to the people in his consideration of the effect upon domestic economy. "The prices of commodities—raw materials, food, clothing, building materials etc." he says, "have risen more in the last ten years than in any previous decade. The average rise in commodities has been fully 50 per cent."

What has caused this increase in the cost of living? Governor Douglas goes straight to the point. "I do not think," he says, "that all of the 50 per cent advance in prices since 1897 is chargeable to the existing protective tariff system or to the innumerable brood of greedy tariff trusts, nearly all of which have been formed since the enactment of the present tariff laws. I would, however, charge about 20 per cent of the 50 per cent rise to high tariff duties and to tariff protected trusts. This is an enormous unnecessary increase, and constitutes a heavy burden on our homes and unprotected industries—that is, on all of our homes and on at least 95 per cent of our farms and factories. If the average cost of living is $900 per year for all families in the United States, this means that $120 a year is tariff trust taxes. If the tax were only $100 a year per family, the total of unnecessary tariff and trust taxes for the 18,000,000 families in the United States is $1,800 million dollars. No other country and no other people ever before paid or could pay such tribute as this to the specially tariff favored industries, which are skimming the cream off the greatest and richest country in the sun ever shone upon."

What is the remedy? "Remove," says Governor Douglas, "the tariff duties that protect the hundreds of trusts that prey on us and that are fattening on the life blood of our homes and industries. Had such tariff duties been removed last year, prices would have declined an average of perhaps 10 per cent."

The Biggest Fine in History.

To our magnificent National collection of the "biggest things on earth," we can now add the great twenty-nine-million-dollar fine. In all the history of jurisprudence, or imprudence, from the Court of Solomon down to the court of last resort, there is no fine like this. It breaks all court records and sets a new mark—a new dollar mark—that is likely to stand for a long time.

Judge Landis, by the imposition of this fine, gave, all unconsciously, a fresh expression of the American spirit—vast, unkempt and unafraid. There is nothing small about us. In our various veins flows the blood of the Barnums. And so we rejoice in this latest addition to our stupendous aggregation of things gigantic.

To the average man who is in the habit of getting his "eleven dollars and costs" on a Monday morning there is something humorous in being "soaked" for $29,000,000. He realizes if Mr. Rockefeller can neither "stay" nor "pay" his fine that it will take him 7,000 years to "lay" it out. And that's a long time on the stone pile.

Mr. Rockefeller himself proves his real Americanism by seeing the humor of the situation and by being able to get from it a lesson with a general application. On next Sunday morning, it is said, he will talk to his Bible class—the biggest, we believe, in the United States—on "The Moral Value of Little Things," using for his text the old adage, "Large fines from little rebates."

Judge Landis, on the other hand, believes that oil men were created evil, and that to the maximum trust belongs the maximum fine. He has certainly done his work well, for, no matter what the Supreme Court may one day declare, rebating is hardly likely to be displayed among the popular fall styles.—The Reader.

Haskell Says Roosevelt did not Discuss Constitution at St. Louis--Oklahoma Delegation Returns Home.

Guthrie, Ok., Oct. 5.—The statehood delegations from various Oklahoma towns returned from St. Louis yesterday. C. N. Haskell, governor-elect, who headed the delegation, arrived from Muskogee and has taken apartments at the Royal for the week. He will be joined by Wm. H. Murray of Tishomingo, president of the late constitutional convention; J. B. Thompson of Pauls Valley, Ed Cassidy and W. L. Chapman of Shawnee, democratic committee officials during the campaign. They will remain here until after a canvass of the votes cast for the state ticket, the constitution and statehood, which begins Tuesday.

It is announced by members of the statehood delegations which visited St. Louis that the president gave no expression on the Oklahoma constitution reports to the contrary notwithstanding. As nearly as can be learned, no private audience was had with President Roosevelt. "We did not go there to cajole him. The only fear is in those seeking a statement from the president," said Mr. Haskell when asked about it.

"The president talked of waiving the main object of his trip," said the prevailing opinion among the delegates that statehood will be in Oklahoma's hands not later than a week after the voting and certified copy of the constitution reaches the executive office. Mr. Haskell will deliver speech in Oklahoma City today, return here Sunday, March 8, of his time between now and then.

Farmers Held a Most Edifying Two Day's Session.

After being in session for nearly two days the regular quarterly meeting of the Pontotoc county Farmers' union adjourned late Friday night.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather reduced the attendance, there was the usual enthusiastic interest in the deliberations.

The 25,000 Club rooms were tendered to the union for its sessions, but the U. S. court room was found to be a more convenient place.

In all fifteen locals were represented. Among the delegates attending were D. S. Lindsey from Chickasaw Ridge, A. W. Campbell from local 638, A. W. Cope and W. B. Pharis from Fitzhugh, J. P. Reaves and H. P. Butler from Hickory, Jeff and Harry Jennings from Roff, T. C. Pritchett and T. C. Jones from Oak Ridge.

There was little business transacted which is properly divulgeable to the public. Some few changes have been made in the local organization as a result of the reorganization of the state union last summer, when the two wings of the body were merged, a new charter was taken out, and the name Indiana Farmers Union was changed to Oklahoma State F. E. & C. U.

DR. NOLEN DIES OF OVERDOSE OF BROMIDIA

As a result of taking an overdose of bromida for their disordered nerves Dr. W. T. Nolen lies dead at his home, and Jack Connors, the blacksmith who works for T. M. Huey, lies dangerously ill.

The two men had been together, and it is presumed the doctor gave Connors the drug and the latter went home and took it.

The woman who conducts the Weir rooming house on Main street is familiar with the circumstances of the doctor's death. She tells the following story:

"About 11:30 Saturday morning Dr. Nolen came up to my lodging house looking worn out. He asked for a bed. When I showed him to a room he demanded some water, insisting, when I came with a drink, that he wanted a whole pitcher full. I brought it, whereupon he produced a bottle of medicine and took a dose. Upon my asking what drug it was, he said it was bromide.

I left him supposing he would get some much needed rest. But after awhile, in the course of an hour, I passed his door and observed water trickling under the door and thought at first he was taking a bath, but, then hearing no noise, not even breathing, I opened the door to find the doctor had fallen off the bed upsetting the water, and was apparently lifeless. Then I gave the alarm and summoned the police.

Several physicians hurried to the scene and worked heroically for some three hours in the hope that life was not entirely extinct, that the heart's action might be restored, but it was without avail.

No physician ever was more generally beloved by his fellow citizens and by his fellow practitioners.

AFFIRM THE DECISION.

Drigger Appeal Turned Down by the Higher Court.

The Court of Appeals in session at McAlester last week, handed down a decision affirming the decision of the lower court in the case of B. F. Driggers, found guilty of murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

The case will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Driggers is charged with the murder of Gold Brady fifteen miles north of Wapanucka about five years ago. The killing was the result of a dispute over who owned a certain strip of land, both men claiming it. The two men met one day and as a result of the difficulty which ensued Driggers shot Brady. Driggers was tried by the court in Ardmore and convicted by a jury and sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary, from which sentence the prisoner appealed and the case having been heard, the court did on last Thursday render an opinion affirming the sentence of the district court.—Wapanucka Press.

The First Big Show of the Season.

Nearly 250 years ago, when the "Thirty Year War" was devastating Germany, a severe attack of plague nearly depopulated the entire Austrian Tyrol. The little secluded village of Obi-Ammergau was, however, exempt from the visitation; in order to protect the inhabitants of the village a cordon was drawn around the city and none were allowed to leave or enter.

It so happened, however, that a native of the village who had been working at Eschenlohe, where the plague was raging furiously, was seized with a sudden home sickness returned under cover of the night and made his way into the little city. Three days afterward he lay dead of the plague and no less than forty of the villagers died of the same dread disease.

In their agony of terror, it occurred to the good people of Obi-Ammergau that a pious vow might propitiate Heaven and turn vengeance from their hearth and home.

It was finally in column conclave resolved to perform every ten years thereafter with all due reverence and solemnity a play which would set forth the life, death and judgment of the Redeemer.

The play is divided into eighteen acts, and covers the entire life of Jesus Christ, and His birth to the Ascension.

At the last production of this fam-

ODDEST JOB HELD BY "VESUVIUS MAN."

He Is Paid a Large Salary for Producing Visible Vapor in Forms of Dramatic Intensity to Tell of Coming Tragedy.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 4.—The man with the oddest job in the world will be in town next week. He is a Smoker from Smokersville and never had a bit of tobacco between his lips. When you attend the "Eruption of Vesuvius" next week, keep your eye on the top of the mountain. The demonstrations from that altitude is one of the remarkable parts of the big spectacle. Manager Pain carries a man who does nothing except smoke "Vesuvius." He is an artist. His business is to cause a thin spire of smoke to issue from the crater, as the spectacle begins. As the pantomime drama advances in interest, it is his well-salaried duty to cause the volume of smoke to increase from a spiral to a decent of showing and as the various scenes of the play are hurried along, he guides his actions by the revels on the stage, hundreds of feet below and "smokes-up."

His ability is apparent from the outside, as Vesuvius is soon smoking at a rate that would defy all the smoke consumers in the world, but the Neapolitan far below, are too well engrossed in their holiday and festivities to pay any attention to the big mountain, which just before the eruption, is throwing smoke and flames hundreds of feet into the air. Those behind the scenes who may be watching the smoke-maker at this period, see him come down in a hurry. He slides down a pole as do firemen, in obedience to a hurry call, and when he has touched terra firma, he works the machinery and puts into operation the explosives that cause the wonderful effects, as though Vesuvius were in actual eruption and about to doff her head covering before proceeding with the tragedy of burying the city below out of sight. This man has a ticklish job to perform, and his exhibition of skill in contriving volumes of smoke of a varying degree of thickness color and activity is really a wonderful bit of work. It is said of him that he can do anything in the smoke line he pleases and has worked the Vesuvius racket in all the principal cities of the world.

Order of Crysanthemum.

The Order of the Crysanthemum, which the Japanese emperor is going to send to President Fallieres of France, as a memento of the signing of the recent important Franco-Japanese treaty, is the highest distinction which the mikado has at his disposal in the way of honors. Like the English Order of the Garter, it is only conferred outside the Japanese empire on kings, emperors and distinguished heads of states. It cannot, however, compare in length of years and in historical associations with the Garter, having only been founded about thirty-two years ago by the present emperor himself. None the less it is a handsome decoration, the broad band of ribbon over the shoulder being of red silk, with a violet border. The insignia itself is of gold, with much ornamentation in colored enamel, which is made in the shape of the national emblem.

The Hand of Canova.

The Venetian correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung writes: "When Canova, the great sculptor, died in Venice on August 13, 1822, his heart was removed from the body and placed in a receptacle for preservation in the Friar's church. His right hand, which had created so much in immortal art, was placed in a crystal urn, which was filled with a preservative fluid and then placed in the Academy of Fine Arts.

The rest of the body was laid away in the tomb at Possagno, which the great sculptor had himself designed. Every year since then, on the anniversary of Canova's death, the director of the Academy has replenished the fluid in the Canova urn and has made a report on the condition of the hand. Despite all care, the hand has in the course of time become so changed that it can inspire no admiration and it has been determined that on the artist's 150th birthday, November 1, 1907, the hand be sent to Possagno for burial in the master's coffin.

The Use of Fiction.

There is no call for an indiscriminate attack upon fiction. There is much to be said in its favor. It puts patches of sunlight into gloomy lives. It cultivates the imagination. It refines the taste, and often those who begin with romance end with history. If it is true to nature it may be more broad and true than a sporadic fact. It may be a powerful instrument of reform on social or political lines. It may be the vehicle of great moral and spiritual teaching as in the parables of the Lord and in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" which is said to have been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible. To be sure, there is a long list of items on the other side, of the account—imagination degraded, conscience dulled, passions inflamed, truth derided, error made plausible, virtue made imbecile and vice keen of wit; but that only shows what appears elsewhere, as in riches, knowledge, authority, that power may be misapplied.—Michigan Christian Herald.

High Observations

Some of the observations made recently by Professor David Todd of Amherst college, head of the Lowell astronomical expedition to South America, who arrived at Lima, Peru, recently, from his trip to the Andes, were made at an altitude of 17,500 feet above the level of thesea.

TALKING BACK TO ACTORS.

The Cowpuncher Tendered His Opinion to the "Duke" Unasked.

From The World Today.

The proneness of village spectators to venture upon speech with persons on the stage is but a consequence of their incorporation into the drama. Whatever their remarks may not be, they are in very nearly every instance, entirely in accord with the intention of the dramatist. "Merchant of Venice" which I saw one night in a town on the Western frontier. The "Duke" of the performance was by far the most consequential person in the play, both as to apparel and as to manner. He entered the court of justice with a stride unquestionably ducal; his comiseration with "Antonio" was kingly in the greatness of the condescension prompting it.

When shortly "Shylock" came and stood before his face, he towered to a positively Jovialike height. "Shylock" he thundered, "the world thinks and I think so too."

A cowpuncher seated close to the footlights interposed. No duke need have hoped for any assumption of pomp whatsoever to hoodwink him. "It's not your opinion anybody is carin' about hearin'," he ejaculated impatiently. "It's his'n," and he jerked a designating thumb in the direction of the Jew.

What Billy Sanders Thinks of the Japs

"Well, here we are, worryin' wi' hoolums that ought to be in jail, an' out that, in the neighborhood of sunset, the Japanees is grinnin' at us. Bekaze some of our gunners holp um out when old Alfred Omega tackled the Rooshan fleet, they think the men in our navy will fight on any side. When it comes to my real opinion of the Japanees, it'd be hard for to give it out to you, bekaze it run around like the second hand of a brass watch, wi' ever sign of stoppin' short while while you're lookin' at it. I dunner what to think of 'em, but it looks as ef the nation that's got the stomach for to put in the customs an' habits of another, an' strut about like it was civilized, is mighty night ready for to run down hill; an' then, agin, I say to myself, like I was talkin' in my sleep that the nation that's ready to put ev'erthink in the discard pile but its gran daddy's ghosts an' a sun-burnt Micka-doo, is some pumpkins for certain."

Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

If you feel run down, fagged out, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, the greatest restorative known; purely vegetable, no alcohol or mineral poison. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.

SPEAKS IN CITY OF MEMPHIS

President Greeted by Enthusiastic Thousands--Addresses Deep Waterways Convention, Then Hikes to Hunting Ground.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—With bands playing children singing and enthusiastic men shouting the slogan of deep waterways Memphis threw wide her gates this afternoon to President Roosevelt a score of governors and many other distinguished personages from the states in the fertile Mississippi Valley.

The president arrived here on the United States steamer Mississippi shortly after 1 o'clock. The bluffs overlooking the river were packed with people who gave the chief executive a warm welcome. As the steamer landed the whistles of all craft in the harbor sounded. Immediately following the steamer Mississippi was the steamer Alton carrying visiting governors and other notables. When all had landed the president was conducted to a cabin by Gov. Patterson of Tennessee and Mayor Malone of Memphis in the most imposing parade ever seen here before.

Things we Must Do and Keep on Doing = = =

The fakir, who jumps from town to town in the wake of a circus, or the fly-by-night merchant who finishes up unexpired leases at bargain prices, can foist any kind of stuff upon the unwary public. But we, who have to do business at the old stand year after year, have to shoulder a responsibility to our customers that makes reliable goods a NECESSITY of incalculable importance. It's one of the things we must do to build our store.

And it's one of the things we ARE DOING and must KEEP ON DOING to build our town.

Reliable goods, reliable fashions, reliable values, have made our business the foremost in Ada. The same forces will keep it there. Our reputation depends not merely on what we HAVE done, but on what we KEEP ON doing; our place on the map is permanent; we can't follow the circus to another town.

many other streets as well. When the deep water problem is almost up to president's carriage turned into Main street he was saluted by a regiment of Confederate veterans who from that point acted as a bodyguard. The president arose and warmly greeted the grizzled warriors of a half a century ago.

Despite a lively downpour of rain which lasted until noon the streets were jammed with citizens and visitors. Passing north on Second street 200 school children were seated on a decorated arch and sang patriotic airs as the president passed. The president arose in his carriage and bowed repeatedly to the little ones.

Arriving at the Auditorium rink where the deep waterways convention is being held, President Roosevelt alighted and after chatting with several friends ascended the platform.

COUNTY UNION AMMUNITION

Farmers Held a Most Edifying Two Day's Session

After being in session for nearly two days the regular quarterly meeting of the Pontotoc county Farmers' union adjourned late Friday night.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather reduced the attendance there was the usual enthusiastic interest in the deliberations.

The 25,000 Club rooms were tendered to the union for its sessions, but the U. S. court room was found to be a more convenient place.

In all fifteen locals were represented.

Among the delegates attending were D. S. Lindsey from Chickasaw, A. W. Campbell from local 618, A. W. Coppe and W. B. Pharis from Elkhorn, J. P. Reaves and H. E. Butter from Hickory, left and Harry Jennings from Roll, T. C. Prichett and T. C. Jones from Oak Ridge.

There was little business transacted which is properly attributable to the public. Some few changes have been made in the local organization as a result of the reorganization of the state union last summer when the two wings of the body were merged, a new charter was taken out and the Oklahoma Farmers Union was renamed to Oklahoma State F. F. & C. I.

In Memoriam.

A lithograph of historical society museum is a copy drawing of a painting of a horse and rider, it is this inscription: Said to the memory of Dr. T. on the 14th day of May 1877, in the sick of a cold, his horses dead & quiet & friendless he took a rest upon my arm what did it was he said it was from me.

I left him supposing he would get some much needed rest. But after resting in the arms of death I less & less observed water trickling under the door and thought Dr. T. was taking a bath but then heard no noise & began breathing. I opened the door to find the doctor had fallen off the bed upsetting the chair and was apparently lifeless. Then I gave the alarm and summoned help.

Several physicians hurried to the scene and worked heroically for some three hours in the hope that life was not entirely extinct but the sufferer were pamper or a plutocrat.

No physician ever was more generally beloved by his fellow citizens and by his fellow practitioners.

DR. NOLAN DIES OF OVERDOSE OF BROMIDIA

As a result of taking an overdose of bromidia for their disordered nerves Dr. W. T. Nolan lies dead at his home, rooming house and Jack Connors, the blacksmith who works for T. M. Huey, lies dangerously ill.

The two men had been together and it is presumed the doctor gave Connors the drug and the latter went home and took it.

The woman who conducts the Weir rooming house on Main street is familiar with the circumstances of the doctor's death. She tells the following story:

About 11:30 Saturday morning Dr. Nolan came up to my lodging house lock, worn out. He asked for a bed. When I showed him to a room he dorm indeed some while insisting when he came with a mink that he wanted a whole pitcher full. I brought it whereupon he produced a bottle of morphine and took a dose. Upon my asking what drug it was, he said it was bromidia.

I left him supposing he would get some much needed rest. But after resting in the arms of death I less & less observed water trickling under the door and thought Dr. T. was taking a bath but then heard no noise & began breathing.

I opened the door to find the doctor had fallen off the bed upsetting the chair and was apparently lifeless. Then I gave the alarm and summoned help.

Then Dr. Nolan no citizen has held the esteem and confidence of the public more firmly. He bore the reputation of being ever scrupulously ethical in his profession and he was a physician of the high humanitarian type—one who ministered to the suffering with uniform faithfulness whether the sufferer were pauper or a plutocrat.

No physician ever was more generally beloved by his fellow citizens and by his fellow practitioners.

AFFIRM THE DECISION.

Brigadier Appeal Turned Down by the Higher Court.

The Court of Appeals in session at McAlester last week, handed down a decision affirming the decision of the lower court in the case of B. F. Driggers, found guilty of murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

The case will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Driggers is charged with the murder of Gold Prad, fifteen miles north of Wapanucka about five years ago. The killing was the result of a dispute over who owned a certain strip of land, both men claiming it. The two men met one day and as a result of the difficulty which ensued Driggers shot Brady. Driggers was tried by the court in Ardmore and convicted by a jury and sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary, from which sentence the prisoner appealed and the case having been heard, the court did on last Thursday render an opinion affirming the sentence of the district court.—Wapanucka Press

The First Big Show of the Season?

Nearly 250 years ago, when the "Thirty Year War" was devastating Germany, a severe attack of plague nearly depopulated the entire Austria Tyrol. The little secluded village of Obi-Ammergan was, however, exempt from the visitation; in order to protect the inhabitants of the village a cordon was drawn around the city and none were allowed to leave or enter.

It so happened, however, that a native of the village who had been working at Eschenlohe where the plague was raging furiously, was seized with a sudden home sickness returned under cover of the night and made his way into the little city. Three days afterward he lay dead of the plague and no less than forty of the villagers died of the same dread disease.

In their agony of terror, it occurred to the good people of Obi-Ammergan that a pious vow might propitiate Heaven and turn vengeance from their hearth and home.

It was finally in solemn conclave resolved to perform every ten years thereafter with all due reverence and solemnity a play which would set forth the life, death and redemption of the Redeemer.

The play is divided into eighteen acts, and covers the entire life of Jesus Christ, and His birth to the Ascension.

At the last production of this famous play, moving pictures were made of it, and the management of the 25,000 club have arranged for the complete production to be presented at the court house next Monday and Tuesday nights Oct 7 and 8th. The production is so long that it requires two performances to run the entire program. The first half will be presented Monday and the second of the series on Tuesday night.

Mr Harry Wilmot, a well known baritone from the Pacific slope, has been specially engaged and at each performance will sing "The Holy City," "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and other appropriate illustrated songs.

Mine Fire Fighting Machine.

For fire fighting in its anthracite coal mines a chemical engine is now being used by a company in Pennsylvania. This engine is built on a truck which can run on tracks throughout the mine. When an alarm of fire is sounded the engine is attached to an electric mine locomotive and rushed to the scene of trouble at high speed. Water played upon a coal fire is almost instantly converted into steam, which further disintegrates, forming a gas so suffocating that it drives away the men fighting the fire. Blue flames which shoot out when water strikes the hot coal often set ablaze pockets of gas in the ceiling. When a chemical engine plays upon burning coal the heavy gases evolved cling to the floor and smother the blaze by excluding the air. Men are not annoyed by the fumes and can stay close enough to do effective work.

Order of Crysanthemum.

The Order of the Crysanthemum, which the Japanese emperor is going to send to President Fallières of France, as a memento of the signing of the recent important Franco-Japanese treaty, is the highest distinction which the mikado has at his disposal in the way of honors. Like the English Order of the Garter, it is only conferred outside the Japanese empire on kings, emperors and distinguished heads of states. It cannot, however, compare in length of years and in historical associations with the Garter, having only been founded about thirty-two years ago by the present emperor himself. None the less it is a handsome decoration, the broad band of ribbon over the shoulder being of red silk, with a violet border. The insignia itself is of gold, with much ornamentation in colored enamel, which is made in the shape of the national emblem.

ODDEST JOB HELD BY "VESUVIUS MAN."

He is Paid a Large Salary for Producing Visible Vapor in Forms of Dramatic Interest to Tell of Coming Tragedy.

Oklahoma City, Oct 4.—The man with the oddest job in the world will be in town next week. He is a Smoker from Smokersville and never had a bit of tobacco between his lips. When you attend the Eruption of Vesuvius" next week keep your eye on the top of the mountain. The demonstrations from that altitude is one of the remarkable parts of the big spectacle. Manager Pain carries a man who does nothing except smoke "Vesuvius." He is an artist. His business is to cause a thin spire of smoke to issue from the crater, as the spectacle begins. As the pantomime drama advances in interest, it is his well-salaried duty to cause the volume of smoke to increase from a spiral to a decent of showing and as the various scenes of the play are hurried along, he guides his actions by the revulsions on the stage, hundreds of feet below and "smokes-up."

His ability is apparent from the outside, as Vesuvius is soon smoking at a rate that would defy all the smoke consumers in the world, but the Neapolitan far below, are too well engrossed in their holiday and festive to pay any attention to the big mountain, which just before the eruption, is throwing smoke and flames hundreds of feet into the air. Those behind the scenes who may be watching the smoke-maker at this period, see him come down in a hurry. He slides down a pole as do firemen, in obedience to a hurry call, and when he has touched terra firma, he works the machinery and puts into operation the explosives that cause the wonderful effects, as though Vesuvius were in actual eruption and about to doff her head covering before proceeding with the tragedy of burying the city below out of sight. This man has a ticklish job to perform, and his exhibition of skill in contriving volumes of smoke of a varying degree of thickness color and activity is really a wonderful bit of work. It is said of him that he can do anything in the smoke line he pleases and has worked the Vesuvius racket in all the principal cities of the world.

The Hand of Canova.

The Venetian correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung writes: "When Canova, the great sculptor, died in Venice on August 18, 1822, his heart was removed from the body and placed in a receptacle for preservation in the Friar's church. His right hand, which had created so much in immortal art, was placed in a crystal urn, which was filled with a preservative fluid and then placed in the Academy of Fine Arts. The rest of the body was laid away in the tomb at Possagno, which the great sculptor had himself designed. Every year since then, on the anniversary of Canova's death, the director of the Academy has replenished the fluid in the Canova urn and has made a report on the condition of the hand. Despite all care, the hand has in the course of time become so changed that it can inspire no admiration and it has been determined that on the artist's 150th birthday, November 1, 1907, the hand be sent to Possagno for burial in the master's coffin.

The Use of Fiction.

There is no call for an indiscriminate attack upon fiction. There is much to be said in its favor. It puts patches of sunlight into gloomy lives. It cultivates the imagination. It refines the taste, and often those who begin with romance end with history. If it is true to nature it may be more broadly true than a sporadic fact. It may be a powerful instrument of reform on social or political lines. It may be the vehicle of great moral and spiritual teaching as in the parables of the Lord and in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" which is said to have been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible. To be sure, there is a long list of items on the other side, of the account—imagination degraded, conscience dulled, passions inflamed, truth derided, error made plausible, virtue made imbecile and vice keen of wit; but all that only shows what appears elsewhere, as in riches, knowledge, authority, that power may be misapplied.—Michigan Christian Herald

TALKING BACK TO ACTORS.

The Cowpuncher Tendered His Opinion to the "Duke" Unashed.

From the World Today.

The proneness of village spectators to venture upon speech with persons on the stage is but a consequence of their incorporation into the drama. Whatever their remarks may not be, they are in very nearly every instance, entirely in accord with the intention of the dramatist. "Merchant of Venice" which I saw one night in a town on the Western frontier. The "Duke" of the performance was by far the most consequential person in the play, both as to apparel and as to manner. He entered the court of justice with a stride unquestionably ducal; his commission with "Antonio" was kingly in the greatness of the condescension prompting it.

When shortly "Shylock" came and stood before his face, he towered to a positively Jovialike height. "Shylock" thundered, "the world thinks and I think so too—"

A cowpuncher seated close to the footlights interposed. No duke need have hoped for any assumption of pomp whatsoever to hoodwink him. "It's not your opinion anybody in carin' about hearin'," he ejaculated impatiently, "It's his'n," and he jerked designating thumb in the direction of the Jew.

What Billy Sanders Thinks of the Japs

"Well, here we are, worryin' wi' hoolums that ought to be in jail, an' out thar, in the neighborhood of sunset, the Japanees is grinnin' at us. Bekeze some of our gunners holp 'em out when old Alfred Omega tackled the Rooshan fleet, they think the men in our navy will fight on any side. When it comes to my reel opinion of the Japanees, it'd be hard for to give it out to you, bekeze it run around like the second hand of a brass watch, wi' ever sign of stoppin' short while while you're lookin' at it. I dinner what to think of 'em, but it looks as ef the nation that's got the stomach for to put in the customs an' habits of another, an' strut about like it was civilized, is mighty night ready for to run down hill; an' them, agin, I say to myself, like I was talkin' in my sleep that the nation that's ready to put everthink in the discard pile but its grandaddy's ghosts an' a sun-burnt Mickadoo, is some pumpkins for certain."—Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

SPEAKS IN CITY OF MEMPHIS

President Greeted by Enthusiastic Thousands---Addresses Deep Waterways Convention, Then Hikes to Hunting Ground.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 4.—With the huge structure filled up rapidly bands playing, children singing and enthusiastic men shouting the slogan of deep waterways, Memphis threw wide her gates this afternoon to President Roosevelt, a score of governors and many other distinguished personages from the states in the fertile Mississippi Valley.

The president arrived here on the United States steamer Mississippi shortly after 1 o'clock. The bluffs overlooking the river were packed with people, who gave the chief executive a warm welcome. As the steamer landed the whistles of all craft in the harbor sounded. Immediately following the steamer Mississippi was the steamer Alton, carrying visiting governors and other notables. When all had landed the president was conducted to a carriage by Gov. Patterson of Tennessee and Mayor Malone of Memphis and the most imposing parade ever seen here began.

Greets Confederate Bodyguard.

The president was continuously cheered throughout the march. The city was a waving mass of color, not only along the line of parade, but on you are right, then go ahead,' and this many other streets as well. When the deep water problem is almost up to president's carriage turned into Main street he was saluted by a regiment of Confederate veterans, who from that point acted as bodyguard. The president arose and warmly greeted the grizzled warriors of a half a century ago.

Despite a lively downpour of rain, which lasted until noon, the streets were jammed with citizens and visitors. Passing north on Second street 200 school children were seated on a decorated arch and sang patriotic airs as the president passed. The president arose in his carriage and bowed repeatedly to the little ones.

Arriving at the Auditorium rink where the deep waterways convention is being held, President Roosevelt alighted and after chatting with several friends ascended the platform.

OVERDOSE OF BROMIDIA

As a result of taking an overdose of bromidia for their disordered nerves Dr. W. T. Nolen lies dead at his home, and Jack Connors, the blacksmith who works for T. M. Huey, lies dangerously ill.

The two men had been together and it is presumed the doctor gave Connors the drug and the latter went home and took it.

The woman who conducts the Well rooming house on Main street is familiar with the circumstances of the doctor's death. She tells the following story:

About 11 o'clock this morning Dr. Nolen came up to my lodging house looking worn out. He asked for a bed. When I showed him to a room he drank some water insisting when I came with a glass that he wanted a whole pitcher full. I brought it, whereupon he produced a bottle of medicine and took a dose. Upon my asking what drug it was he said it was bromidia.

I left him supposing he would get some much-needed rest. But after half an hour or so he awoke, got dressed and observed water trickling under the door and thought it must be leaking. But then he was no longer in his breathing. I opened the door to find the doctor had fallen off the bed upsetting the water and was apparently lifeless when I gave the alarm and summoned help.

Several physicians hurried to the scene and worked heroically for some three hours in the hope that life was not entirely extinct that the heart's action might be restored but it was without avail.

It is thought the doctor must have been partaking of the drug to a considerable extent before going to the rooming house.

The tragedy has cast a deep gloom over the entire city such is the esteem in which Dr. Nolen and his family are held.

Dr. W. T. Nolen was a pioneer citizen of Ada, having been the town's leading physician even before the rail road came. At that time he was joint-proprietor with Prof. J. H. O'Brien of the only drug store the town afford.

Until recently he was proprietor of one of our leading drug stores but the increasing demands of his practice caused him to dispose of his store in tests.

Then Dr. Nolen no citizen but held the esteem and confidence of the public more firmly. He bore the reputation of being ever scrupulously ethical in his profession and he was a physician of the high humanitarian type—one who ministered to the suffering with uniform faithfulness whether the sufferers were pauper or a plutocrat.

No physician ever was more generally beloved by his fellow citizens and by his fellow practitioners.

AFFIRM THE DECISION.

Drinker Appeal Turned Down by the Higher Court.

The Court of Appeals in session at McAlester last week, handed down a decision affirming the decision of the lower court in the case of B. F. Driggers, found guilty of murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

The case will be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Driggers is charged with the murder of Gold Prad, fifteen miles north of Wapanucka about five years ago. The killing was the result of a dispute over who owned a certain strip of land, both men claiming it. The two men met one day and as a result of the difficulty which ensued Driggers shot Brady. Driggers was tried by the court in Ardmore and convicted by a jury and sentenced to 99 years in the penitentiary, from which sentence the prisoner appealed and the case having been heard, the court did on last Thursday render an opinion affirming the sentence of the district court.—Wapanucka Press

The First Big Show of the Season?

Nearly 250 years ago, when the "Thirty Year War" was devastating Germany, a severe attack of plague nearly depopulated the entire Austria Tyrol. The little secluded village of Obi-Ammergan was, however, exempt from the visitation; in order to protect the inhabitants of the village a cordon was drawn around the city and none were allowed to leave or enter.

It so happened, however, that a native of the village who had been working at Eschenlohe where the plague was raging furiously, was seized with a sudden home sickness returned under cover of the night and made his way into the little city. Three days afterward he lay dead of the plague and no less than forty of the villagers died of the same dread disease.

In their agony of terror, it occurred to the good people of Obi-Ammergan that a pious vow might propitiate Heaven and turn vengeance from their hearth and home.

It was finally in solemn conclave resolved to perform every ten years thereafter with all due reverence and solemnity a play which would set forth the life, death and redemption of the Redeemer.

The play is divided into eighteen acts, and covers the entire life of Jesus Christ, and His birth to the Ascension.

HIGHEST JOB HELD BY "VESUVIUS MAN."

He is Paid a Large Salary for Producing Visible Vapor in Forms of Dramatic Interest to Tell of Coming Tragedy.

Tragedy.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 4.—The man with the oddest job in the world will be in town next week. He is a Smoker from Smokersville and never had a bit of tobacco between his lips. When you attend the Eruption of Vesuvius" next week keep your eye on the top of the mountain. The demonstrations from that altitude is one of the remarkable parts of the big spectacle. Manager Pain carries a man who does nothing except smoke "Vesuvius". He is an artist. His business is to cause a thin spire of smoke to issue from the crater, as the spectacle begins. As the pantomime drama advances in interest, it is his well-salaried duty to cause the volume of smoke to increase from a spiral to a decent of showing and as the various scenes of the play are hurried along, he guides his actions by the revulsions on the stage, hundreds of feet below and "smokes-up."

His ability is apparent from the outside, as Vesuvius is soon smoking at a rate that would defy all the smoke consumers in the world, but the Neapolitans far below, are too well engrossed in their holiday and festivities to pay any attention to the big mountain, which just before the eruption, is throwing smoke and flames hundreds of feet into the air. Those behind the scenes who may be watching the smoke-maker at this period, see him come down in a hurry. He slides down a pole as do firemen, in obedience to a hurry call, and when he has touched terra firma, he works the machinery and puts into operation the explosives that cause the wonderful effects, as though Vesuvius were in actual eruption and about to doff her head covering before proceeding with the tragedy of burying the city below out of sight. This man has a ticklish job to perform, and his exhibition of skill in contriving volumes of smoke of a varying degree of thickness color and activity is really a wonderful bit of work. It is said of him that he can do anything in the smoke line he pleases and has worked the Vesuvius racket in all the principal cities of the world.

Order of Crysanthemum.

The Order of the Crysanthemum, which the Japanese emperor is going to send to President Fallieres of France, as a memento of the signing of the recent important Franco-Japanese treaty, is the highest distinction which the mikado has at his disposal in the way of honors. Like the English Order of the Garter, it is only conferred outside the Japanese empire on kings, emperors and distinguished heads of states. It cannot, however, compare in length of years and in historical associations with the Garter, having only been founded about thirty-two years ago by the present emperor himself. None the less it is a handsome decoration, the broad band of ribbon over the shoulder being of red silk, with a violet border. The insignia itself is of gold, with much ornamentation in colored enamel, which is made in the shape of the national emblem.

The Hand of Canova.

The Venetian correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung writes: "When Canova, the great sculptor, died in Venice on August 13, 1822, his heart was removed from the body and placed in a receptacle for preservation in the Friar's church. His right hand, which had created so much in immortal art, was placed in a crystal urn, which was filled with a preservative fluid and then placed in the Academy of Fine Arts. The rest of the body was laid away in the tomb at Possagno, which the great sculptor had himself designed. Every year since then, on the anniversary of Canova's death, the director of the Academy has replenished the fluid in the Canova urn and has made a report on the condition of the hand. Despite all care, the hand has in the course of time become so changed that it can inspire no admiration and it has been determined that on the artist's 150th birthday, November 1, 1907, the hand be sent to Possagno for burial in the master's coffin.

The Use of Fiction.

There is no call for an indiscriminate attack upon fiction. There is much to be said in its favor. It puts patches of sunlight into gloomy lives. It cultivates the imagination. It refines the taste, and often those who begin with romance end with history. If it is true to nature it may be more broadly true than a sporadic fact. It may be a powerful instrument of reform on social or political lines. It may be the vehicle of great moral and spiritual teaching as in the parables of the Lord and in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress" which is said to have been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible. To be sure, there is a long list of items on the other side, of the account—imagination degraded, conscience dulled, passions inflamed, truth derided, error made plausible, virtue made imbecile and vice keen of wit; but all that only shows what appears elsewhere, as in riches, knowledge, authority, that power may be misapplied.—Michigan Christian Herald

High Observations.

Some of the observations made recently by Professor David Todd of Amherst college, head of the Lowell astronomical expedition to South America, who arrived at Lima, Peru, recently, from his trip to the Andes, were made at an altitude of 17,500 feet above the level of the sea.

TALKING BACK TO ACTORS.

The Cowpuncher Tendered His Opinion to the "Duke" Unashed.

From the World Today.

The proneness of village spectators to venture upon speech with persons on the stage is but a consequence of their incorporation into the drama. Whatever their remarks may not be, they are in very nearly every instance, entirely in accord with the intention of the dramatist. "Merchant of Venice" which I saw one night in a town on the Western frontier. The "Duke" of the performance was by far the most consequential person in the play, both as to apparel and as to manner. He entered the court of justice with a stride unquestionably ducal; his commission with "Antonio" was kingly in the greatness of the condescension prompting it.

When shortly "Shylock" came and stood before his face, he towered to a positively Jovialike height. "Shylock" he thundered, "the world thinks and I think so too—"

A cowpuncher seated close to the footlights interposed. No duke need have hoped for any assumption of pomp whatsoever to hoodwink him. "It's not your opinion anybody in carin' about hearin'," he ejaculated impatiently, "It's his'n," and he jerked designating thumb in the direction of the Jew.

What Billy Sanders Thinks of the Japs

"Well, here we are, worryin' wi' hoolums that ought to be in jail, an' out thar, in the neighborhood of sunset, the Japanees is grinnin' at us. Bekeaze some of our gunners holp 'em out when old Alfred Omega tackled the Rooshan fleet, they think the men in our navy will fight on any side. When it comes to my reel opinion of the Japanees, it'd be hard for to give it out to you, bekeaze it run around like the second hand of a brass watch, wi' ever sign of stoppin' short while while you're lookin' at it. I dinner what to think of 'em, but it looks as if the nation that's got the stomach for to put in the customs an' habits of another, an' strut about like it was civilized, is mighty right ready for to run down hill; an' them, agin, I say to myself, like I was talkin' in my sleep that the nation that's ready to put everthink in the discard pile but its grandaddy's ghosts an' a sun-burnt Mickadoo, is some pumpkins for certain."—Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

If you feel run down, fagged out, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, the greatest restorative known; purely vegetable, no alcohol or mineral poison. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.
